Market Strategy (Risk Management)

DEFENSE: The current beta is 20.8% vs. the benchmark of 101% and up from 17.5% last week. The first line on just about any document that comes out of the financial services industry is that past returns are not necessarily going to be repeated. Dividend stocks have lagged significantly as value has underperformed growth the most since the 2000 dot com bubble. We expect that value (ex-energy long term) will see a mean reversion in 2021. The technology trade is over owned and grossly over valued, but still works long term. AAPL traded at a P/E under 20x for decades. It's not worth 30x+ now except for perception about growth over value. It's a colossal bubble. As the economy recovers for COVID in the coming years, dividend stocks likely see some mean reversion. We see a democratic sweep and a rollback of the Trump tax cuts along with anti-trust action benefitting dividend paying stocks more than stocks that have been boosted by zero rate financialization of the markets in recent years. Global dividend stocks are down 18% YTD and global technology stocks are up 30%. That trend will likely mean revert in 2021. We will be well positioned to take advantage of it.

1 The benchmark is the return of the targeted portfolio. As of Jan 1, 2017, the target portfolio is 80% (CYH) and 20% (ZDV); 2 Beta is a measure of how a fund responds to moves in the broader market. A beta of greater than 1.0 suggests that the fund is more volatile than the market, while a beta of less than 1.0 suggests that the fund is less volatile. 3 Yield is the most recent income received by the fund in the form of dividends, interest and other income annualized based on the payment frequency, divided by the current market value of the fund's investments. 4 Volatility is the annualized standard deviation which is a measure of risk. 5 Upside/Downside is a statistical measure of how much of the fund performance a manager captured during up-markets or down-markets. Typically, an investor would prefer a higher upside capture and lower downside capture. The time period presented is since inception. 6 Standard Deviation is a measure of risk that calculates the variation of a fund's performance around its average over a specific time period. © "BMO (M-bar roundel)" is a registered trade-mark of Bank of Montreal, used under license.
